MR. BARBOUR'S LETTER. - While Mr. Barbour does not hesitate to declare that he is heartily in sympaty with the movement that is endeavoring to place General Hancock in the presidential chair, he eschews a discussion of the leading issues involved in that movement, and addresses bimself to a presentation of issues which are important to every Virginian, to wit, the development of her rescurces and the duty of securing from the general government such aid as it can constitutionally lend towards this object. The letter shows the practical business habits of the man as well as the matured refiections of one who has thought deeply and well as to the material interests of Virginia and how they can be advanced.

That he has ever considered Virginia's sinterests and those of her people is indicated by the statement he makes that the railroad of which he was president for a longtime has never been a burden upon the tax-payers of the State. We wish other railroad presidents furnished from the State could say as much. The oppor-tunity to taint the "grand old Mother's" name with repudiation would never have arisen, and Mr. Barbour's opponent would have been found pursuing the besten path which his talents and better judgment must dictate to him as the correct one for a brave and historically loyal people to pursue.

We commend the letter of Mr. Barbour to our readers for the able manner in which he presents the interests of the State and their requirements. and we trust that every conservative will be convinced that he will vote wisely by casting his ballot for Mr John S. Barbour.—Clarke Cur. OLDEN TIMES. - I'me tolowing is an extract from the letter of an old Alexandrian, residing in Memphis, to whom a centennial pamphlet was sen : "The fine poem of my old friend Whittington was a rare treat. 'Marray's fife and Peter Logan's drum.' bow well I remember the music they made! Joseph Williams alias Goat. The recollections of Joe are as vivid in my memory as those of yesterday, and Nek Rausall, too, how could any one target the good natured, good for nothing Nick? But when you come down to Abraham Lyon and Adam Fas. I know all about them; both of these old fellows were magistrates. One weighed the hay and the other the justice. You managed to get heir came: a little mix : i. but that disturb their repose. Henry ought not to have forgottee old 'Rooi - Vaugne,' occas character in our old town. He was Namie Undger's grams son, and from his own scount was born on the Poto nao, fourteen miles from Hob Hole, where the whale rap aground. Henry ought to apologize to the shade of old Rubin." MEETING -At a regular meeting of the conservative readjuster club of the city of Alexandris, Va., held on the 15 h inst., President Jas. R. Shion in the chair, it was re-olved that the members of the club in consideration of the fact that mail matter seat from Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va., addressed to the Readjus or Haccock and English club of Alexaudria. Va., was taken from the postoffice and the seal being proken by the Mahantes was secretly kept from view by them, they knowing that said mail was not incorded for the bogus concern that no honorable body of men would be guilty of such an ac . Therefor . we condema the parties who recaived the mail and did not return it to the postoffice, rather than the postoffice clark -Resolved, Tast we foreward the handful of despised creatures so called rea justers of Mahone ideas, that we will not allow a repetition of a similar transaction, but will appeal to the law for tampering with the mail. By order of conservative readjuster club. R. T. COOK, Sic.
